

History of the Point Fermin Lighthouse

Built by the Federal Government in 1874 to light the entrance to the growing Los Angeles Harbor, Point Fermin Lighthouse stood as a beacon for 67 years before its light was extinguished and removed by the Navy during WWII.

The building was restored and listed on the National Register of Historic Places in anticipation of its 100th Birthday in 1974.

In 2002 the lighthouse underwent another restoration to open it to the public offering interpretive exhibits and tours. Thousands have climbed the tower and walked in the footsteps of the lighthouse keepers who lived and worked at the lighthouse.

Point Fermin Lighthouse Society

The 150th Celebration is being organized by the Point Fermin Lighthouse Society in cooperation with the Department of Recreation and Parks.

Special Thanks to our Committee and Volunteers who have given their time and efforts to share this celebration with the City of Los Angeles.

“Continued thanks for the cooperation from our local representatives and community members who have worked with us over the last 20 years to keep this lighthouse open to the public and as an asset to the community. We look forward to working with you during our 150th celebration and in the future.”

opportunity to commemorate this milestone year! Your sponsorship is a pledge to support the mission and the goals of the Point Fermin Lighthouse while at the same time helping you put your commitment in the spotlight. A lighthouse keeper's role was to protect and care for the lighthouse.
